2. DATA COLLECTION ANALYSIS

2.6 Data Analysis Questions

Analyze the LEA’s data and answer the guiding questions to determine existing trends and patterns that support the identification of demographic and financial needs. Student subgroups with a count of less than 15 are denoted by “TFS” (too few students).

What perception data did you use?	NCES has several amazing stakeholders who have a vested interest in seeing our school be successful and the committee members on the school improvement team work towards providing opportunities for stakeholders to give feedback on how they perceive the school is doing. We use survey data from our parents and students that contributes to our CCRPI score. We have used data from students, parents and community focus groups to help make revisions to some of the structural and procedural processes we have in place in order to make them better.

What does the perception data tell you?	The perception data helps us understand what students, parents, teachers, and the community think about the learning environment. Using the specific example of teaching reading and writing as a basis to answer this question: Our K-5 teachers teach reading and writing with the Reading Wonders curriculum that aligns with State curriculum standards as indicated by the results of standardized testing assessments. They may use the student survey results to determine the effectiveness of their small group instruction. The teachers rely heavily on technological materials in their reading and writing instruction and refer students who need extra help for tutoring intervention and they coordinate with the administration team to make this a reality to meet the students' needs.

What process data did you use?	MCSD and NCES believe education goes beyond just telling students what they are expected to know, and it is important to clearly describe the process of teaching so none of the necessary data is omitted. So some of the process data that we use that outlines the steps in the process of educating students may include, but is not limited to: selecting curriculum content that aligns with educational standards, using a variety of instructional methods to meet different learning styles, evaluating and assessing student mastery, creating supplementary educational programming, and teaching the philosophy, goals, mission or guiding principles of the district and the school.
--	--

What does your process data tell you?	NCES processes data include the school's programs, instructional strategies, assessment strategies, and classroom practices. Keeping track of these processes through careful documentation helps us build a continuum of learning for all students.

What achievement data did you use?	NCES' student achievement data include a variety of measurements—norm-referenced tests, criterion-referenced tests, standards assessments, teacher-assigned grades, and authentic assessments (the following is a list of some noted within NCES and across MCSD): <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ● EOG Georgia Milestones Assessment ● Pre and Post SGM Assessments ● Quarterly Benchmark Assessments ● Fountas and Pinnell BAS Assessments ● Report Cards ● Achieve 3000 ● SMARTY Ants ● Reading Wonders Assessments ● Envision Math Assessments

What does your achievement data tell you?	NCES' student achievement data shows the impact of our instructional system on our students. We are pleased that most of our students are getting their educational needs met through Tier 1 instruction and the remainder of the students are supported through Tiers 2 and 3 instruction and show tremendous growth.
--	---

What demographic data did you use?	We used a variety of demographic data to inform us about our students, staff, school and surrounding community.

What does the demographic data tell you?	NCES' demographic data describe the students, the school's staff, the school, and the surrounding community This information delineates the context in which the school operates and is crucial for understanding all other data. By dis-aggregating information by demographics (for example, by gender or ethnicity), we are able to understand what impact the education system is having on different groups of students. We are able to answer questions that deal with the following areas: About Students <ul style="list-style-type: none"> Number of students in the school Class sizes Absences/tardies Gender Ethnicity/race Home background
---	--

What does the demographic data tell you?	Lunch status (free, reduced, or full price) Language proficiency Special needs Mobility Retention rates About Staff Numbers of teachers, administrators, paraprofessionals, and support staff Years of experience (total number of years and by grade level) Absences Gender Ethnicity/race Types of certification Student-teacher ratios Professional development opportunities Extracurricular activity involvement/committees About the School History Safety/crime data Special qualities and strengths Turnover rate of teachers and staff Community support Programs offered About the Community Location and history Makeup of the population Economic base Population trends Types of employers in the community Community/business involvement Support agencies

3. NEEDS IDENTIFICATION AND ROOT CAUSE ANALYSIS

3.1 Strengths and Challenges Based on Trends and Patterns

Read the trends and patterns summaries from each section of the data analysis process. Use the information in these summaries to complete 3.2 and 3.3. Using the summaries in 3.1 and other local data, describe the strengths and challenges or answer the guiding questions for each program. Include strengths and challenges related to: a) general program implementation, and b) students and adults involved in or affected by the program. Focus on strengths and challenges that will assist in the identification of needs during 3.2. Watch the Identifying Need webinar for additional information and guidance.

Strengths and Challenges Based on Trends and Patterns

Coherent Instructional: Summarize the coherent instructional system trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	As a team, we observed that the SST process and IEP processes are important in helping to monitor students' progress. Data teams, grade level meetings, formative and summative assessments were also beneficial to identify needs of the students and teachers. In addition, survey results help to give insight on the areas of strengths or additional support for students, teachers and administrators as well.
Effective Leadership: Summarize the effective leadership trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	Effective leadership trends and patterns observed and identified in this area include a proven rich history and comprehensive plan for effective, strong governance and leadership at both the District and School level that is supported through extremely successful and consistent policies, practices and procedures. Differentiated professional learning, data-informed school improvement plans, the highly-rated AdvanceED Accreditation External Review provide a platform for which NCES will continue to positively impact student achievement. Areas in need of growth include continuing to provide all stakeholders the opportunity for increased collaboration, ensuring that both formative and summative data is utilized and communicated in a timely manner, consistent manner in order to continually inform instructional practices at the District and School Levels.
Professional Capacity: Summarize the professional capacity trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	NCES implements a collaborative and ongoing process for improvement that aligns the functions of the school with the expectations for student learning. Improvement efforts are sustained and the school demonstrates progress in improving student performance and school effectiveness.

Strengths and Challenges Based on Trends and Patterns

Family and Community Engagement: Summarize the family and community engagement trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	NCES believes that family engagement should be the true hallmark of any school. NCES administration and staff work hard in trying to engage in proactive, persistent, and embedded efforts which result in meaningful parent and community involvement. We strive to have a sense of pervasive ownership and investment from stakeholders and families regarding student learning, school performance, and achievement of system and school purpose and direction. We are very fortunate to have an active and highly-successful PTO who work tirelessly to raise funds to support student learning and social fulfillment through various activities, such as Father/Daughter Dances, Boosterthon, Field Day, etc. The teacher websites and the MCSD Parent Portal provide a means for academic support. The Parent Portal gives families full access to grades, assignments, daily attendance and opportunities to communicate with teachers. Parents can participate in workshops to support student learning in various content areas and through the use of District provided instructional programs. NCES recognizes that there is always room for improvement: Although we keep clear communication with parents through different venues and believe we are able to ensure a healthy relationship between all stakeholders; we believe that parental participation in school-based activities can be improved due to our large enrollment of students.
---	--

Supportive Learning Environment: Summarize the supportive learning environment trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	NCES is a well maintained and organized school; the staff collaborates well together as a whole and in across grade level teams; students feel safe and supported at our school; and parents widely accept and appreciate the hard work that staff contributes to educating and caring for their children. This will continue to remain a goal of the NCES' stakeholders. It is our hope that we will continue to improve each year and that we will build positive relationships with all stakeholders to create a culture in which students want to participate and excel.
---	---

Demographic and Financial: Summarize the demographic and financial trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	When considering demographic and financial trends in our schools, we have noticed that our transient population is high due to the military and real estate availability in our area. The growth in the ESOL student population is a trend that the District will need to continue to address through teacher/leader training. The training will need to be focused on best instructional strategies for ESOL students, as well as growing teacher/leaders cultural awareness of students coming from diverse backgrounds. Additionally, teachers/leaders will need support in increasing parent engagement with ESOL students' parents. This will help with school culture/climate initiatives and student achievement.

Strengths and Challenges Based on Trends and Patterns

Student Achievement: Summarize the student achievement trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	NCES has generally shown a positive trend in the percentage of students exhibiting typical to high growth over the years. When NCES subgroup Student Growth Measures (SGM) and End of the Grade (EOG) performances are analyzed across content performance, English Language Arts emerges as an area of concern, specifically written expression and reading for grades K-5.

IDEA – Special Education, Economically Disadvantaged Children, and English Learners.

Using the summaries in 3.1 and other local data, describe the strengths and challenges or answer the guiding questions for each program. Include strengths and challenges related to: a) general program implementation, and b) students and adults involved in or affected by the program. Focus on strengths and challenges that will assist in the identification of needs during 3.3. Watch the Identifying Need webinar for additional information and guidance.

Strengths	MCSD has a systematic specialized programs for reading and math instruction and IEP process that supports students (special education, economically disadvantage, EL learners) in grades K-5, and NCES implements them with fidelity.

Challenges	As these areas are identified, the District will need to provide ongoing professional learning to teachers/leaders so we can meet the academic and social needs of these students.
