2. DATA COLLECTION ANALYSIS

2.6 Data Analysis Questions

Analyze the LEA’s data and answer the guiding questions to determine existing trends and patterns that support the identification of demographic and financial needs. Student subgroups with a count of less than 15 are denoted by “TFS” (too few students).

What perception data did you use?	Fox used several perception data sources in the form of surveys. All stakeholder groups (parents, students, staff, etc.) were surveyed to gather data on the school's progress.

What does the perception data tell you?	Staff Survey Results: Teachers report that they feel safe at school, have the resources needed and are given training that is helpful. Some teachers feel like students with discipline problems prevent them from teaching and students from learning. They also wish parents participated more. None of this was surprising to the team. Parent Survey Results: The parents have expressed that they would like to be more involved with the school, by making classroom visits and other programs. The team finds it very positive that parents want a reason to come to the school, so we will make it possible in a very parent friendly way. (The report noted to the left was not available at the time of publication, so information from the 2017 GSAPS and CNA by HMH was used to respond) Student Survey Results: The majority of students at Fox Elementary like school and feel that teachers treat them with respect. However, 50% or more do not feel like students behave so teachers can teach and they don't feel like they get along with other students. The majority of students do feel like there is an adult who will help them. There are a fair number of reports of being hit, kicked, rumors spread, or threatened on more than one occasion. This information seems in alignment with our office discipline referrals and bullying referrals made by students. The results that are concerning is that a majority of children feel like they don't get along with others and that they don't think the teachers are able to teach because of other students' behaviors.

What process data did you use?	The process data used by Fox includes the informal needs assessments conducted by external vendors and GADOE. Houghton Mifflin/International Center for Learning & Education and GADOE School Improvement Grant Turnaround specialists both conducted needs assessments to determine areas the school is making adequate progress as well as providing suggestions for improvement.
--	--

What does your process data tell you?	Students are not able to write at a grade level expectation to explain learning in all subject areas, therefore, teacher training on writing strategies is needed. The discipline referrals is higher than the normal average so classroom management strategies need to be consistent among grade levels as well as school-wide implementation of school procedures implemented. Because scores in achievement lack proficient and distinguished learners, teachers need strategies that will engage students in all areas.

What achievement data did you use?	The achievement data sources used by the leadership team include GMAS results and district benchmark assessments.
--	--

What does your achievement data tell you?	In ELA and math we have decreased the number of students in all three subgroups that are beginning and increased the number of students that are proficient learners. In Science and Social Studies we decreased the number of beginning learners and increased all other categories. As we continue to monitor student learning and instruction we will see an increase in student achievement. The needs of students, teachers, and leaders are evident through these observations and SEA and LEA monitoring. We have very few students in the distinguished category usually less than 1%, and many subjects and grades none at all. We realize that we need to look at students who may be close to this category and differentiate the instruction to meet their needs. It is also noted that students who appear to excel at Fox Elementary, are really just on grade level, and would not appear as exceptional in other school settings. We need to prepare our top students for this as they transition to middle school.

What demographic data did you use?	Demographic data used for analysis includes subgroup, attendance, and discipline.
--	--

What does the demographic data tell you?	Our minority rate is 20% points above the state average and our special education rate is 3.3% points above the state average and we have more than twice as many directly certified households as the state average and our mobility rate is almost twice that of the state rate. With this information we are able to allocate the resources that we have to fit the needs of our students. The addition of the SIG funds over the last three years has allowed us to bridge these gaps. Our school is located in an urban community and high poverty neighborhood, next to the largest government housing project in the city and this affects all of the areas represented in this report. The unemployment rate is very high and the median income is much lower than the state or city average.

3. NEEDS IDENTIFICATION AND ROOT CAUSE ANALYSIS

3.1 Strengths and Challenges Based on Trends and Patterns

Read the trends and patterns summaries from each section of the data analysis process. Use the information in these summaries to complete 3.2 and 3.3. Using the summaries in 3.1 and other local data, describe the strengths and challenges or answer the guiding questions for each program. Include strengths and challenges related to: a) general program implementation, and b) students and adults involved in or affected by the program. Focus on strengths and challenges that will assist in the identification of needs during 3.2. Watch the Identifying Need webinar for additional information and guidance.

Strengths and Challenges Based on Trends and Patterns

Coherent Instructional: Summarize the coherent instructional system trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	Collaborative planning and data team cycles are strong processes in the school. All teachers understand the process and need for this type of planning. They are built around the standards and allow for the teachers to prioritize them and analyze student data to identify student needs on a regular basis. The trends and patterns found in observations, peer walk-through data team minutes, and leadership team minutes will guide our work.
Effective Leadership: Summarize the effective leadership trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	The administrators are effectively leading the instructional work by planning, supporting, and participating with teachers in all professional development. Observation and feedback cycles are implemented with fidelity and coaching support is provided as needed by academic coaches. The decisions made by the administration are data driven and student centered.
Professional Capacity: Summarize the professional capacity trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	Our professional development model is effective for teachers. They are able to receive direct instruction followed by modeling and job-embedded practice to ensure quality implementation. The continuation of SEA and LEA monitoring, consultant's feedback, peer walk-throughs, coaching feedback, and TKES reports will identify needs in all area.
Family and Community Engagement: Summarize the family and community engagement trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	We have discovered that although we communicate in a variety of ways with parents they are not attending events as we would like. We have tried several different approaches and times to accommodate the parents but yet they do not attend. The most concerning was the FANN program that provides a substantial amount of groceries to families on a bi-weekly basis and we could not fill up the 15 slots available. If we can't get them to come for free food, then we are not sure what it will take for them to see the need to be involved. We will continue to alter our methods and evaluate their effectiveness until we find the right combination.

Strengths and Challenges Based on Trends and Patterns

Supportive Learning Environment: Summarize the supportive learning environment trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	With the implementation of PBIS and 2nd Step Curriculum students have started finding other ways to express their emotions and are making better choices. PBIS will be implemented in all classrooms next year and this will provide a consistency that is needed. We still have some students that are outliers with serious behavior concerns, that cannot be met with typical interventions. We are working through the process for special education identification. By continuing to monitor the implementation of these programs we are able to identify student, teacher, and leader needs on a regular basis.

Demographic and Financial: Summarize the demographic and financial trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	Our school has challenges that the neighborhood faces and it is magnified in the school. We are a microcosm of our neighborhood, all the while trying to change the attitudes and beliefs about school and learning. The financial means of the school are sufficient with the supplementation of Title I and SIG funds. Historically this school has been high poverty and subsequently low performing, however, the student achievement trend is making a rise as the efforts to sustain high quality instruction and leadership are maintained by the administration.

Student Achievement: Summarize the student achievement trends and patterns observed by the team while completing this section of the report. What are the important trends and patterns that will support the identification of student, teacher, and leader needs?	In ELA and math we have decreased the number of students in all three subgroups that are beginning and increased the number of students that are proficient learners. In Science and Social Studies we decreased the number of beginning learners and increased all other categories. As we continue to monitor student learning and instruction we will see an increase in student achievement. The needs of students, teachers, and leaders are evident through these observations and SEA & LEA monitoring.

IDEA – Special Education, Economically Disadvantaged Children, and English Learners.

Using the summaries in 3.1 and other local data, describe the strengths and challenges or answer the guiding questions for each program. Include strengths and challenges related to: a) general program implementation, and b) students and adults involved in or affected by the program. Focus on strengths and challenges that will assist in the identification of needs during 3.3. Watch the Identifying Need webinar for additional information and guidance.

Strengths	Fox Elementary School has a comprehensive approach to assist students who may need more individualized learning. The guidance counselor trains each teacher on how to collect data and apply interventions. We also have problem solving teams that meet to discuss the needs of students and creates a plan.

Focus on strengths and challenges that will assist in the identification of needs during 3.3. Watch the Identifying Need webinar for additional information and guidance.

Challenges	The challenges that Fox Elementary has encountered is that students with severe behavior problems are not able to be staffed on an emergency basis, sometimes taking as many as 18 weeks. In several cases this year, one adult had to be allocated to one behavioral student in order to keep adults and children safe for more than nine weeks at a time. This reallocation of human resources impacted other students being served by the special education teacher as needed.
